"The Hypocrites"
Preachy but Interesting—
And Oh! That Thrill.

"THE Hypocrites" did have a time it before virtue triumphed and the young man agreed to marry the girl at the Hudson Theatre last night. And then? Well, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, who had been anxiously watching the audience from an upper box, was caught in a gale of applause and cries for "Author!" that kept him

Mr. Bennett carried the scene splendidly, and Miss Doris Keane was as sensitive and appealing as her sprained ankle in the role of Rachel. Miss Jessie Millward made the jealousy of the mother felt at every turn of the play, but she was a trifle too loud. In her loyalty Even Greater vocal extravagance marred the otherwise good work of Miss Leslie Faber, an English actress, as the preaching curate. Another actor from London, Mr. J. H. Barnes, played the father of the embarrassed young man like a born hypocrite, and other excellent performances were given by Miss Helen Tracey, Mr. W. H. Denny and Mr. Arthur Lewis.

VEAL STEW AND BEER THE DIET OF SMALL BABY

What Evening World Doctors Have To Fight To Save Little Lives.

Veal stew and beer! A nice menu for a nine-months-old baby, but that is what a member of The Evening World's "Sick Babies" Fund corps of physicians found in an east side tenement yesterday.

In a small room without the least ventilation the child was being stuffed with veal stew and beer, while its body was so swaddled in blis of clothes and bed coverings that it could scarcely breathe.

"I'm afraid the baby will take cold. The weather isn't as hot as it was," explained the mother, as the poor, weak little creature raised its eyes in mute appeal. This well-meaning but ignorant mother could not understand that the feeble walls of the infant came from her involuntary brutal treatment, and at each cry she tried to force the veal stew or a sip of beer into the baby's mouth.

The slight change in the weather has, of course, brought colds galore to the feeble little babies of the tenements. The Evening World's physicians have a serious struggle, too, trying to make mothers understand that they are killing their babies by keeping them penned up in silent, stuffy rooms.

"It may seem silly to keep them warm," said the physician, "but the minute a mother thinks she is taking cold she puts it up in an unventilated room and piles it over with clothes. We try to make them take the babies down to the parks, especially those near the water."

Feeding the baby every time it cries is the panacea for all infant woes, according to the point of view of ignorant mothers, and the Evening World's Sick Babies Fund staff have had to try every possible means to save the baby stomachs from terrible danger.

Parents, however, pure milk. These should be the watchwords of the mothers with sick babies.

INSPECTOR MC LAUGHLIN SICK. Inspector William McLaughlin of the Detective Bureau, ill at Paul Smith's in the Adirondacks, he caught a cold and pneumonia with the same intensity as the Toadstools. The first act and the situation presented commanded interest, as one of the second act was the struggle between the son's future to be administered except for a bit of exaggeration at the end, and all old-fashioned, decidedly before the laborious machinations of Mr. Jones creaked its way up to the climax that gave you the last laugh.

Feeling the baby every time it cries is the panacea for all infant woes, according to the point of view of ignorant mothers, and the Evening World's Sick Babies Fund staff have had to try every possible means to save the baby stomachs from terrible danger.

A Material Difference.

MUSHROOMS are delightfully palatable and healthful, yet some species of Toadstools so closely resemble the toothsome mushroom as to make it dangerous to experiment with uncertainties. And so it is with Castoria and its imitations. Keep the Castoria that bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher ever in your mind's eye as the mushroom. And be as particular to remember the counterfeits, substitutes and "just as good" kind as the Toadstools. There may be a resemblance in the package, but the results obtained are so widely different as to make the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher the important feature when buying Castoria.

Why should not our preparation be superior to all other children's remedies? Have not eminent physicians from the Atlantic to the Pacific testified to its perfection? Castoria that bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is the name of chemical art as applied to a child's medicine.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher
